Woods matching jobs, graduates

The placement office has a job on its hands—several jobs in fact. Now its problem is to fit the right person into the most suitable job. John E. Woods, director of guidance and placement, has been interviewing January graduates. He said that he would like to interview them all as soon as possible. The sooner January graduates get in to see him, the better chance he will have of placing them; and the better chance they will have of learning job-finding techniques.

Though 31 jobs are available for the 29 January graduates, Mr. Woods is having difficulty matching them.

"There are too many people wanting to get into personnel work," he said, "and at present there are no personnel openings. On the other hand, we have several requests for engineers, with no engineering graduates. Our engineering students usually transfer and graduate from Iowa State or Nebraska."

During the second semester, recruiters from big companies, especially in the east, will be coming to interview the outstanding June graduates for prospective jobs. Many of them have made appointments already.

Cafeteria price raise squabble simmering

Investigation in the "cafeteria price hike caper" was moving at a snail's pace last week.

Wentworth Clarke, head of the Student Council's two-man investigating committee, said that he and the other committee member, Leonard Best, had checked and found "downtown prices, in general, about the same as in the university cafeteria."

Clarke added that "we are waiting for the return of Finance Secretary Charles Hoff before we go into the thing farther."

Hoff's office said Saturday that he is expected back from a west coast trip about the 25th of the month.

The other figure in the price hike fight, Cafeteria Head Gladys Black, said she would be glad to explain the cafeteria's setup to any student interested.

She added that cafeteria prices here are generally lower than those downtown.

MacBeth recording donated by graduate

Peter Clarke, class of '48, has donated Orson Welles' recording of MacBeth to the English Department.

The recording will be utilized for courses in Shakespeare and will also be loaned to students.

Adwers debunks 'more heat' pleas

The recent flood of pleas for more heat in the building brought this comment from Jack Adwers, superintendent of building and grounds.

"You can't please all of the people all of the time."

On a recent inspection trip through the building, he found 73 degrees to be the lowest temperature in any room. Adwers said he and his staff check the building temperature every two hours.

He said he found windows open in several rooms. "A window open in one room will chill five or six others," he emphasized.

Adwers said he received a suggestion recently to add another door to the southwest entrance. "We tried it before" and it complicated the heating problem and caused congestion in the corridor.

"The entrance was designed to accommodate approximately 200 persons per hour, whereas about 400 are using it now," he pointed out.

Brief breather to precede new term

Bookstore ready for new business Monday

Books for second semester will go on sale at the bookstore beginning Monday, Jan. 24, according to bookstore manager Ben Koenig.

"We are glad to announce that there will be no shortage of books in any subject", Koenig said. His report is based on the shipments of books that have arrived here during the past three weeks.

Locker claims may also be renewed during exam week. If students do not renew their claims by Friday of that week, the combinations will be changed and registration for them will be opened to all students.

"This has been the policy of the school during past years," Koenig said. "We'd just like to refresh the students' memories."

So that's where they came from

By Tom Moore

Ancient Greeks laughed at the same things that bring chuckles to us, according to Ulf Oestergaard, Danish educator.

His talk on humor in ancient culture before the Town and Gown Club Thursday was his second speech in two days to an OU audience.

Oestergaard, who is now teaching at Pittsburg (Kans.) State Teachers' College, spoke to the World Affairs Institute Wednesday.

"I, myself, have often wondered why early Greek plays can be enjoyed by a modern audience," he commented. "Perhaps it is that many of their jokes are still funny and help the plays to live."

He said that comedy as we know it developed in the fifth century BC. He added that it was filled with outspoken satire of prominent people and happenings just like much present day humor.

The Town and Gown Club is an organization which discusses cultural phases of life and their classical meanings, but keeps close to university life of the city. Members are enrolled through the university each semester.

So we can have first issue next term, this is the semester's last

In a vain attempt to keep the paper's staff eligible next semester, Gateway top brass decided late last night to make this the term's last issue.

Disclaiming any personal motive in making the decision, Editor Bob Seitzer said, "I have little to worry about, my D minus average hasn't slipped more than a point, but some of our staffers are in pretty bad shape."

Seitzer pointed out that "a few staff members will have to take time out to meet their professors before they will be allowed to take finals."

The first issue of next term, if there is anyone around to put it out, will appear Feb. 4.

2-day break for Monday, Tuesday

After a three-day truce beginning Jan. 29 with the end of finals, students will again be under fire as classes resume Feb. 2.

Counseling for second semester starts Jan. 31 for new students, transfer students, and university students who have not yet enrolled. Schedule cards can be picked up at the registrar's office on Feb. 1, and fees must be paid by that date.

A late registration fee of $3.00 will be charged those who fail to cross the finish line by that time.

So far, registration figures have reached the 1,550 mark, according to Registrar Alice Smith. About 200 high school and transfer students have made entrance applications for second semester.

New students will take physical examinations on Jan. 24 and 25. They will take guidance and placement examinations on the 26th and 27th.

Final examinations for the first semester will be given during the week of Jan. 22 to 29.

Dime Book Reviews starts Wednesday

"The Big Freeze" by Bellamy Partridge will be the first book to be reviewed in the spring series of Dime Book Reviews beginning Feb. 2.

The book will be reviewed by Omahan Mrs. Harvey Clark. The reviews, which will be held at the Brandeis Auditorium on Wednesdays at 1:30, are co-sponsored by the School of Adult Education and the Omaha Council of Parent-Teacher Associations.

Season tickets are $1.20, single session admission is 25 cents.

Play class ties fun, experience

Fun plus practical experience is the theme of Mrs. Frances Key's play production and theater workshop class.

Students are working on 5 plays during class periods. The best of these will be given before the University Players.

"A Night at an Inn," "Silence Please," "The Valiant," "Joint Owners in Spain" and "The Twelve Pound Look" are the plays. Participants in the productions include: Douglas White, Charles Budka, Thomas Slack, Arthur Westergaard, Robert Duckworth, James DiMartino, William Fyffe, Harry Langdon, Pat Jones.

Beverly Pessen, Marilyn Anderson, Roberta Muir, Betty Voner, and Jean Durney.

Flu shots to be given

Flu shots are again offered to Omaha U students. They will be given Jan. 19 at the Student Health Office for $1.

Designed to prevent colds and influenza, the shots are effective for six months.

He is Dr. Mahmut N. Lacin, who will show the strategic and political importance of the Near East and discuss Russo-Turkish and Turkish-American relations in his 7:30 talk in the auditorium.

As the core of his talk, Dr. Lacin will present information on the "Straits Question," which is the focal point of Turkish relations with the outside world.

An open meeting to permit audience discussion will conclude the lecture.

Dr. Lacin served in the United States Armed Forces during the war, and at that time obtained his American citizenship. He was attached to the Office of Strategic Services.

Following the war, he taught at the University of Southern California. He is now in his second year of teaching at Drake University.

Taylor surveys failure reasons

Whether they get A's or F's, students now can find out why.

An education professor at the university has finally written down the answer to the long-time problem of "Why College Students Fail."

Dr. Taylor

Education gives the six main reasons for student failure.

The student's irregular attendance is listed as the biggest reason for failing grades; his ability and attitude are called the most important factors in A marks. Other reasons for failure are lack of interest, preparation and application.

To get these results, Dr. Taylor worked with a faculty committee for a semester to analyze the factors which might influence the grades of 20 students who had all A marks and another 20 with all F's.

The group made 208 interviews with instructors for each course carried by the 40 students.

The Alumni Association board had a luncheon meeting Thursday at the Chamber of Commerce to discuss plans for a membership drive.

Joe Baker, '48, will be in charge of the drive.

McMillan to address Bluffs Kiwanis meet

J. G. McMillan, assistant professor of physics, will speak on plastics at the Council Bluffs Kiwanis Club meeting Jan. 24.

He will demonstrate some of the most modern plastics—polyethylene and saran.

The Northside Presbyterian Men's Club heard McMillan speak on "Plastics Today and Two Thousand Years Ago" Thursday.

Crammers take heart

When it comes to cramming, it seems most students do.

A recent survey on cramming at Bradley University shows that around 87 percent usually crammed about six-and-a-half hours for each final examination.

And the psychological effect of cramming seems to help the veteran student as much as the additional facts he picks up.

The man who made the study, Dr. David M. White, believes that "it is possible that there is some tieover from their (the veterans') wartime indoctrination with its focus on D-Day, H-Hour type of activity and the necessity to direct themselves psychologically to a D-Day, H-Hour stimulus in the classroom."

Findings, reported by Intercollegiate Press, were based on a survey of ten percent of Bradley's enrollment.

Educators confer on reading at conference

Two down and one to go.

The second of three Mid-Winter Conferences ended Wednesday evening. The two-day session featured Dr. Guy L. Bond discussing the series topic, "Reading in a Functional Program of Education," Tuesday evening at 7. Bond is an education specialist from the University of Minnesota.

Magazine study set for Jan. 25

A house magazine institute will meet Jan. 25 at the university to discuss problems of magazines published by business and industrial organizations.

The convention is sponsored by the Department of Journalism in co-operation with the Omaha and Lincoln Chapters of the Society of American Industrial Editors.

Robert L. Mossholder, professor of journalism, will open the meeting at 9:30 a.m., discussing the objectives of the institute, President Bail will welcome the guests.

At a noon luncheon "Good House Magazine Reporting" will be discussed by Walter G. Beach of Houston, Texas, president of the Society of American Industrial Editors.

W. J. Nash of the Monsanto Chemical Company in St. Louis, will speak on "The Importance of the House Magazine to Business and Industry" at the 6:00 p.m. dinner.

Discussion leaders include Hugh Fogarty, assistant managing editor of the World-Herald and member of the Journalism Department's night school faculty.

Other speakers represent Omaha and Lincoln house organ editors, newsmen, advertising writers, photographers, artists, engravers and typographers.

University of Minnesota.

Earlier in the day the educators met for a general conference. Wednesday's session featured a luncheon for the faculty and conference guests and discussions at 4 and 7 p. m. in the auditorium. All meetings were open to the public.

The conference series is sponsored by the university's Department of Education and School of Adult Education and the Omaha Public Schools.

Galvanometer tells if she's really blushing

Equipment "sensitive enough to measure the heat of a blush on a girl's face from across the room" has been purchased by the Physics Department.

The apparatus, a galvanometer and accessories, cost the school $92.50, less than half its regular price of $200. Two OU students, Jack Beecroft, freshman, and Joe Chepuran, sophomore, were responsible for the saving.

Employed at the Omaha Scientific Supply Company, from whom the purchase was made, they persuaded Company President R. B. Barry, a former OU student, to give the school "first crack" at the offer.

Galvanometers are usually used "in detecting very small electrical currents," said J. G. McMillan, assistant professor of physics. This one will probably be used for demonstration purposes and work by advanced students, he added.

Indians vs. Ichabods at Tech tomorrow

By John Duncan
Gateway Sports Editor

Washburn University will present its basketball wares on the Tech court against Coach Don Pflasterer's improving cagers tomorrow night at 8.

The underdog Indians will be out to upset the dope in this tilt. Earlier in Topeka, the Ichabods won over the Red and Black, 57-49.

If playing on the home court means anything in relation to the outcome of the game, the Pflasterermen should be rated an even chance to come through with a win.

Bud's cousins

In the previous contest, Washburn led 33-26 at the half, and beat down a last-ditch Indian rally for the triumph. Bud Gibbons was high point man with 16 against the Topeka boys and it is hoped that he will reach the scoring heights again tomorrow night.

Omaha committed 32 fouls on the Topeka court as Guy Oberg, Archie Arvin and Ernie Flecky fouled out.

The Kansas club receives most of its scoring punch from Center John Carlson. The big boy tallied 21 points against Omaha and is ranked among the top ten scorers for small colleges over the nation.

"Well coached outfit"

Coach Ad Miller's Washburn crew has won more games than it has lost this year and according to OU Coach Pflasterer, the Ichabods are a very well coached outfit.

Jan. 11, Washburn lost to a strong Emporia St. squad, 58-45. On Jan. 6, they romped over Fort Hays College, 68-54.

Earlier in the season, the Ichabods beat Texas Wesleyan, 72-60. Baker, 53-46, and NW Oklahoma 67-59. Oklahoma City beat them 37-27.

Coach Pflasterer will most likely string along with Glen Richter, Ray Schmidt, Guy Oberg, Ernie Flecky and Joe Arenas as his starting five. Schmidt will be game captain for the second time this season.

Probable starting lineups:

Indians	Ichabods
Ray Schmidt (GC) F	Bill Benson
Glen Richter F	George Gordon
Guy Oberg C	John Carlson
Joe Arenas G	Jim McConnell
Ernie Flecky	G. Bruce Crabaugh

Game garbled as Papooses trample Van Sant, 64-29

By Mark Gautier
Gateway Sportswriter

Confusion ran high amongst OU fans Friday night as Coach Charlie Brock's Papoose five rolled to victory No. 7, a 64-29 walk over an undermanned Van Sant quintet at Tech High.

The reason for all this confusion can be attributed to the fact that the Van Santers were outfitted with the same colored jerseys as the Papooses usually wear. Also, their undermanned squad was spiked with Papooses Bob Murray and Bernie Anderson.

What's more, the Van Sant jerseys were without lettering, and the blue practice jerseys of the B team were minus both letters or numbers. The fact that no one knew the score because the scoreboard wasn't working added to the mahem.

Farner injects humor

The outcome of the game was never in doubt however, as the young Indians swept to a 16-7 lead after ten minutes of play and a 33-11 margin at intermission.

Van Sant had little better to offer the second half, and the Brock-men continued to move, the score being 47-20 going into the final ten minutes.

Big Bob Farner injected some humor in the waning minutes with some desperation shot antics. Teammates and fans were yelling for the big boy to get one more point for a total of 20.

Having shown plenty of class in racking up 19 points earlier in the contest, Bobby Joe laughingly obliged by trying every shot in the book. He finally collected on a charity toss.

Indian quint gains easiest win of season; Huron smothered, 66-44

Omaha University gained its easiest victory of the season Friday night when it spanked Huron College, 66-44, at Tech.

The win gave the Indians a record of six wins and six losses.

During the first eight minutes, it appeared that Coach Don Pflasterer had finally found his most potent quintet. Ray Schmidt, Glen Richter, Guy Oberg, Lou Clure and Game Captain Ernie Flecky rushed the OU five to an early 22-8 lead.

Omaha played better ball in the first period than it has all season against the hit and miss (mostly miss) Huron club.

The home club's pass and break offense was clicking very well and Oberg, Schmidt and Richter were driving hard for the basket.

Huron finally started hitting with a semblance of regularity in the second canto and pulled within ten points of the Red and Black as the first half ended.

Darrell Kirby of the visiting club collected 12 points in the first half. He scored three buckets and six straight gift tosses. Kirby was held scoreless in the final half.

Flecky hits tip-ins

Huron stayed within ten points of Omaha until five minutes were left in the game. Brilliant under-the-basket work by Flecky turned the game into a rout in the final period.

Flecky was held to two points the first 20 minutes, but he came back in the final stanzas to score 18 and become the night's scoring leader with a total of 15 points.
